

MENU MATH

GRADE LEVEL(S) 2-4

LESSON OBJECTIVE

Students will practice and demonstrate understanding for solving equations, 'real world' word problems and varying amounts of money.

BACKGROUND/PRIOR KNOWLEDGE NEEDED

There is no prior knowledge or background needed for a teacher to incorporate this lesson into the classroom.

EDUCATION STANDARD(S)

Grade 2: Number Sense – 2.0, 2.2, 5.0, 5.1, 5.2; Mathematical Reasoning – 1.0, 2.0

Grade 3: Number Sense – 2.0, 3.3; Mathematical Reasoning – 1.0, 2.0

Grade 4: Number Sense – 2.0

MATERIALS NEEDED

Menu Math worksheets, Menus from Mariasol, Bubba Gump Shrimp Co., and Big Dean's Oceanfront Café, pencil, and paper.

MOTIVATION

Share various real restaurant menus with the class. Read Pigs Will be Pigs with the class. This is a story about pigs wanting to go out to a restaurant, but they must first search around the house for enough money to pay for the dinner. The class can count the money that the pigs collect as the story is read. Have a discussion about what the pigs would be able to afford at some of the restaurant menus that were shared with the class and have them do the math to figure this out. This introductory lesson is motivation for getting students interested in the math menu activity.

DIRECT INSTRUCTION

- Use the three menu math worksheets (see attached) to have the students choose a restaurant menu or assign specific worksheets to the children.
- Have students work through the menu math word problems questions. Students will use computation skills, understanding of word problems and knowledge of money to answer the questions.

- Students can work with a partner or independently.
- Have students share their answers and go over the problems.

GROUP/INDEPENDENT WORK

Students can work independently or in varying groups or teams depending on level of ability, class size and/or teacher's preference.

ACCOMMODATIONS AND MODIFICATIONS

Many modifications can be made to Menu Math with relative ease. The following are some suggestions:

- Shorten number of questions for English language learners, students with special needs, and for students who are younger.
- Simplify or alter the restaurant money amounts.
- For older students, have them create their own questions from the menu(s) for other students to solve.
- Take a field trip to the Santa Monica Pier. Have students get menus from various restaurants on and around the pier. These then can be used for students to create their own menu math questions to share with classmates.
- The menus for young children might be made easier by pricing all items as $1, $2, $3, etc. (To do so place blank stickers over the original prices and write in the nearest even dollar amount.)
- Meals from different restaurants might be compared. The learners might select a typical meal, do some menu research, and then discuss such items as quantity, variety (is salad included?), cost, and perhaps even atmosphere.
- To expand this lesson for older students, students might determine what the same meal would cost if it were prepared at home for the same number of people.
- To modify this lesson for older students, create critical thinking scenarios such as: The Fish and Chips plate at Doug's Fish Fry costs $2.35 to cook. Doug's Fish Fry charges $4.25 per plate and sells 20 plates per hour. The Fish and Chips plate at Chiperoo Kid's also costs $2.35 to cook. Chiperoo Kid's charges $4.50 per plate and sells 17 plates per hour. Who makes more profit per hour if all other expenses are the same? For older children, additional factors might be included such as labor costs, paper goods, etc. (Doug's and Chiperoo Kid's are fictional.)
- To modify this lesson for older children, encourage the students to investigate the menus for math factors other than cost, such as calories, fats, sugars, salt, etc. Design a math worksheet around health factors instead of economic factors.

To modify this lesson for younger students including Pre-K, replace the Direct Instruction provided with the following -

- Prior to instruction, design the dramatic play area of the classroom to be a "restaurant". Include pretend food that could be found at the Santa Monica Pier restaurants such as seafood, pasta, etc.

- Prior to direct instruction, design a menu for the dramatic play restaurant that includes prices.
- During direct instruction, introduce children to the menu. Describe the prices (whole numbers please), menu items, etc. Invite them to color and decorate their menus as they wish.
- During direct instruction, introduce the children to pretend money.
- Introduce the menu and pretend money to the dramatic play area. Monitor the children's activities. Introduce cashier slips, receipts books, job interviews, sales to parents, etc., as indicated by child sophistication and interest levels.

ASSESSMENT/WRAP UP

Students can verify each others' work if in groups. Work can also be assessed and checked through a class discussion.

Hello,
my name's Forrest,
Forrest Gump

Bubba taught me all there is to know about the shrimpin' business. So now I get to share some favorite recipes from Mama, Bubba's Mama and Lieutenant Dan and Jenny. Did you know we got a whole bunch of boats? Twelve "Jenny's"... a big ol' warehouse, we even have hats that say "Bubba Gump Shrimp Co." It's a household name!

Mama always had a chair at her table for hungry folks - and I do too!
